Course Description:

The New Jersey Office of Emergency Management, in partnership with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and FEMA Region II is presenting a one-day web-based HURREVAC training course.

The National Hurricane Program is transitioning to a web-based version of HURREVAC, the hurricane decision support tool for government emergency managers. The new system is useful in a variety of contexts, including evacuation studies, planning, training, evacuation decision-making and hurricane response.

This comprehensive training will introduce emergency managers to the new HURREVAC platform. It will include an overview of the interface, with interactive exercises and demonstrations to understand how to use the new capabilities.

The course will also provide background information on the National Weather Service forecast products and Hurricane Evacuation Study (HES) information that HURREVAC uses. The course will provide specific focus on HES information available for the local area.

Students should apply for HURREVAC and HVX-HURREVAC Beta accounts in advance of the class at:
